Little Boy's Suffering from Eczema. Grew Worse under 3 Doctors. Cured by Cuticura.

For one year my little boy was troubled with eczema. After trying three eminent physicians, the disease grew worse; both cheeks became a raw sore. Then spots began to break out on his body; and I am of an opinion that if I had not tried CUTICURA REMEDIES, my boy would to-day have been covered from head to foot with the terrible disease. After using the remedies for two months, he was entirely cured, and is now as fair as any boy. I send you this testimonial, in hopes some poor afflicted one may see this cure and obtain CUTICURA REMEDIES at once. J. WILLARD CASE, Shelter Island Heights, N. Y.

I have read a good deal about the CUTICURA REMEDIES, but I did not take any stock in them until I saw it with my own eyes. My sister had skin disease for a large number of years. CURED BY Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It saved my life." —Geo. B. Hunter, Goose River, N. S.

"About a year ago I took the worst cold that ever a man had, followed by a terrible cough. The best medical aid was of no avail. At last I began to spit blood, when it was supposed to be all over with me. Every remedy failed, till a neighbor recommended Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I took half a teaspoonful of this medicine, three times a day, regularly, and very soon began to improve. My cough left me, my sleep was undisturbed, my appetite returned, my emaciated limbs gained flesh and strength and, to-day, thanks to the Pectoral, I am a well man."—H. A. Democratic Club.

The Democratic Club of Reading township met Saturday evening at their headquarters in Hampton. Meeting called to order by the president. Minutes of last meeting read and approved. The chairman of the constitution committee read a copy of the constitution they drafted, which was unanimously adopted. The committee on resolutions reported the following, which were adopted with a hurrah:

WHEREAS, The Democratic party, at their convention at Chicago decided upon as our standard bearer, that honest, courageous, upright and noble statesman, Grover Cleveland, who has proven himself a friend of the laboring classes of this country by being the champion of tariff reform, and Adlai E. Stevenson, who has also proven himself worthy of our support; therefore, be it

Resolved, That henceforth until the campaign is finished, we hereby pledge ourselves to labor with untiring zeal for their success.

WHEREAS, The Congressional conferrees decided upon that honorable and brave statesman, Hon. F. E. Beltzhoover, to again represent this district in Congress, and as he has gained the entire confidence of the people by his unsurpassed record, and his earnest support of all measures that benefit the great mass of the people of this country; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we heartily indorse his renomination and pledge him our earnest support.

Resolved, That we heartily indorse the entire county ticket, and especially the renomination of Hon. W. T. Ziegler for his untiring energy in the defeat of the road and other obnoxious bills, and this Club pledges itself to exert its best energies for the success of the entire county ticket.

Resolved, That we heartily indorse Robt. E. Pattison for his honest, conservative and patriotic administration of public affairs.

Resolved, That we heartily indorse the platform adopted at Chicago, and that we accept the same as the best and safest method of securing the greatest good to the greatest number.

Resolved, That we denounce the McKinley tariff bill, enacted by the Fifty-first Congress, which has brought distress to the many, and wealth to the few, and under its vicious influence, the rich are growing richer and the poor growing poorer. We deny the false plea that the so-called Republican protective tariff protects and increases the wages of the laboring man, for its results are plainly evidenced under two years of McKinley tariff, in the five hundred strikes, the numerous reductions in wages, and the present difficulty between honest labor and the tariff fattened Carnegie & Co.

Resolved, That we denounce that infamous measure known as the Force bill, that pernicious Republican attempt to change our free government into an olegarchy, which seeks the freedom of elective franchise by placing behind every freeman's ballot a Federal bayonet, and we assert that every true American citizen regardless of political faith should crush this policy at the polls, and that we recognize the civil law as far superior, and denounce military rule at the polls.

Resolved, That we denounce the Republican Senate for having rejected the free binder twine bill, and other tariff bills that would save the farmers and laboring classes of this country millions of dollars.

Resolved, That we earnestly urge all citizens to join us in securing a victory that will bring us tariff reform, and change this Republican method of protection which is robbing the great mass of the people for the special benefit of a favored few.

Resolved, That the president of this meeting forward copies of these resolutions to Hon. F. E. Beltzhoover and the Gettysburg COMPILER.

Adjourned to meet Saturday evening, Sept. 10th, at which time the Club will be entertained by distinguished speakers. All are cordially invited.

J. H. HOECHST, Sec.

THE REAL ISSUE OF THE CAMPAIGN.—The instant that natural conditions, lawful purposes, and just limitations of taxation are violated; the instant that the State takes property from its citizens that is not needed or takes inequitably that which is needed, that instant the exercise of the power becomes a matter of will and might, and not of law and right. The greatest evils that characterize free and popular governments of to-day are evils that result from the abuse of taxation, and their magnitude and tendency to increase are so great as to make the boast of individual freedom on the part of citizens in respect to the full ownership and control of their property very often little more than an unmeaning phrase. Shall these abuses be recognized and tolerated, and a tendency to further progress in this same direction be encouraged, or shall they be met with stern and uncompromising protests, immediate check, and ultimate complete arrest and prevention? These are the real questions at issue at the present time between the two great political parties of this country, and the situation exemplifies anew the lesson of history—that all the great contests for freedom from the earliest times have originated in abuses of taxation.—David A. Wells, in the September Forum.

SENATOR GRAY, of Delaware, declares that the south is as solid as ever for Democracy. The people of that section are thoroughly aroused to the menace to their liberties embodied in the infamous force bill.

IT is said Pension Commissioner Raum intends to take the stump for Harrison. Raum's record is such that about the best thing he could take, both for Harrison and the country at large, would be a long walk into the back yard of retirement.

GOVERNMENT employes in Washington have been notified in a peremptory way, by assessment circulars left at their places of residence, that "voluntary" contributions are wanted from them for the Republican campaign fund.

COL. W. A. TAYLOR, Democratic candidate for secretary of state, predicts that Ohio will go Democratic in November by 20,000 majority. He bases his opinion on the widespread conversion of wage workers and farmers to tariff reform ideas.

COLUMBUS.

PREPARATION FOR HIS THIRD VOYAGE: HE ENTERS THE EQUATORIAL CALMS: HIS NOVEL EXPERIENCES AND KEENNESS OF OBSERVATION: ARRIVES AT ESPANOLA.

THIRTEENTH ARTICLE.
Written for the Gettysburg Compiler.

When Columbus landed in Cadiz from his second voyage, he found in the harbor three caravals just about starting for Espanola with tardy supplies. He had only to ask Pedro Alonzo Nino, the commandant of the little fleet, for his dispatches to find the condition of feeling which he was to encounter in Spain. It was clear that discord and unproductiveness was not much longer to be endured. So he wrote a letter to the Adelantado, which was to go by the ships, urging expedition in quieting the life of the colonists, and bringing the resources of the island under such control that it could be made to yield a steady flow of treasure.

As soon as the messages of Columbus reached their Majesties, then at Almazon, they sent a letter, July 12th, 1496, inviting him to Court, and reassuring him in his despondency by expressions of kindness. Columbus' reception seems to have been gracious, and he made the most of the amenities of the occasion to picture, in his old exaggerating way, the wealth of the Ophir Mines. He was encouraged by the effect which his enthusiasm had produced to ask to be supplied with another fleet, partly to send additional supplies to Espanola, but mainly to enable him to discover the continental land farther south, of which he had so constantly heard reports.

It was easy for the monarchs to give fair promises and quite as easy to forget them, for a while at least, in the busy scenes which their political ambitions were producing. Belligerent relations with France necessitated a vigilant watch about the Pyrenees, coupled with other exciting events engrossed too much of the time of the monarchs to give attention to the wishes of Columbus, and it was not till the autumn of 1496, that an appropriation was made to equip another little squadron for him. In the mean time Nino had returned from Espanola, and the dispatches from Bartholomew Columbus pictured the colony in the same conditions of destitution as before, and the nearest approach to gold which the caravels brought was another crowd of dusky Indian slaves.

When the spring months of 1499 arrived there were new hopes. But the King was growing more apathetic, as well as some of the leading spirits about the Court. By the Queen's influence a modification of the rights of Columbus was effected, which included the right of the Crown to grant licenses to others, and Fonseca was invested with power to do so. Power was given to Columbus to grant land to such as would cultivate the soil for four years. Permission was given him to entail his estates. He marked out in a testamentary document, the succession of his heirs, male first, and if his son Diega's line ran out, then male heirs of his brother's, and when these failed, then the estates were to descend by the female line. It was in this document that Columbus prescribed the signature of his representatives in succeeding generations, following a formula that he always used himself. The interpretation of this has been various. All this seemed to indicate that the complaints which had been made against the oppressive sternness of the Admiral's rule had not as yet broken down the barriers of the Queen's protection. The complacency of Isabella was soothing; her appointment of his son Ferdinand as her page was gratifying, but it could not wholly compensate Columbus for the condition of the public mind, of which he was in every way forcibly reminded.

Columbus, during this period of his sojourn in Spain, spent a considerable time under the roof of Andres Bernaldes, and we get in his history of the Spanish Kings the advantage of the talks which the two friends had together. We get as clearly from these as from any other source the measure of the disappointment which the public shared as respects the conspicuous failure of these voyages of Columbus in their pecuniary relations. It was by virtue of this discontented and irritated public sentiment which made it far from easy to fit out his new expedition. There was so much disinclination in the merchants to furnish ships that it required a royal order to sieze them before the small fleet could be gathered. The enlistments to man the ships and make up the contingent destined for the colony were more difficult still.

Even the prisons did not disgorge their vermin, as he had wished, and his company gathered very slowly, and never became full. Las Casas tells us that troubles followed him even to the dock. The accountant of Fonseca got into an altercation with the Admiral, who knocked him down and exhibited other marks of passion, and that his violence produced a greater effect on the monarchs than all the allegations of the Admiral's cruelty which his accusers from Espanola had constantly brought forward, and that it was the immediate cause of the change of royal sentiment towards him, which soon afterwards appeared. Columbus seems to have discovered his mistake and wrote to the monarchs to counteract its effect. It was, therefore, with this new anxiety upon his mind that he for the third time committed himself to his career of adventure and exploration.

Columbus lifted anchor in the port of San Lucar de Barrameda on May 30th, 1498. His six vessels stood off to the southwest. His plan was a definite one, to keep in a southerly course till he reached the equatorial regions, and then to proceed west. By this course he hoped to strike in that direction the continental mass of which he had intimation both from the reports of the natives in Espanola and from the trend which he had found in his last voyage the Cuban coast to have. It is barely possible that the reports from England of Cabot's discoveries at the north may have given a hint of like prolongation to the south. The whole of course was nothing but a guess. But a more impelling instinct was the prevalent one of his time, the hunger and thirst for gold and other precious things, and which associated the possession of them with the warmer regions of the globe. A lapidary of distinction had written to Columbus confirming this the prevalent notion that such objects of commerce as gold and jewels came in greatest abundance from near the equator, while black races of men were those that predominated near such sources. "Therefore," the writer told Columbus, "steer south and find a black race, if you would get such opulent abundance." So it was with expectations like these that Columbus now worked his way south.

By the 15th of July he had reached the latitude of 5° north. He was now within the verge of the equatorial calms. The air soon burned everything; the rigging oozed with running tar; the seams of the vessel opened; provisions grew putrid, and the wine casks shrank and leaked. He changed his course and after a tedious interval drew into a fresher atmosphere. He did not discover land as soon as he expected, and so he bore away to the north, thinking to see some of the Carb Islands. On July 31st, relief came, none too soon, for their water was nearly exhausted. As the ships went on the three peaks of a triple mountain appeared on an island to which he gave the name of Trinidad, a reminder in its peak of the Trinity, which he had determined at the start to commemorate by bestowing that appellation on the first land he saw. He coasted the shore of this island for some distance before he could find a harbor to careen his ships and replenish his water casks.

He was now on the southern side of the island, and in that channel which separates Trinidad from the low country about the mouth of the river Orinoco. Before long he could see the opposite coast stretching away for twenty leagues, but he did not suspect it to be other than an island, which he named La Isla Santa. It was indeed strange but not surprising that Columbus found an island of a new continent and supposed it the main land of the Old World, as happened during his earlier voyages; and equally striking it was that now when he had actually seen the main land of a new world he did not know it. By the 2nd of August the Admiral had approached that narrow channel nearest to the main land, and here he anchored. A large canoe, containing five and twenty Indians, put off towards the ships and lay upon their paddles a bow shot away. They were lighter in skin than any Indians he had seen before. This was not very promising in view of the belief that precious products would be found in a country inhabited by blacks. Columbus grew uneasy in his insecure anchorage, for he had discovered as yet no roadstead. He saw the current flowing by with a strength that alarmed him. The waters seemed to tumble in commotion as they were jammed together in the narrow pass before him. It was his first experience of that African current which, setting across the ocean, plunges hereabouts into the Caribbean Sea, and, sweeping around the great Gulf, passes north in what we know as the Gulf Stream.

Columbus was as yet ignorant, too, of the great masses of water which the many mouths of the Orinoco discharge along this shore; and when at night a great roaring billow of water came across the channel and he found his own ship lifting at her anchor and one of his caravels snapping her cable, he felt himself in the face of new dangers, and of forces of nature to which he was not accustomed. To a seaman's senses not used to such phenomena, the situation of the ships was alarming. This surging flow of the current he named the "Mouth of the Serpent." To attempt its passage was almost foolhardy. To return along the coast stemming such a current seemed nearly impossible. The shore of Trinidad stretched northerly, and he turned to follow it, but somebody getting a taste of the water found it to be fresh. Here was a new surprise. He had not yet comprehended that he was within a land-looked gulf, where the rush of the Orinoco sweetened the tide throughout. As he approached the northwestern limit of Trinidad, he found that a lofty cape jutted out opposite a similar head-land to the west, and that between them lay a second surging channel beset with rocks. So he gave it the name of the "Mouth of the Dragon." He was still ignorant of the way in which his fleet was embayed in this marvelous water, and he ran across to the opposite shore. The water grew fresher as he went on. The shore attracted him, with its harbors and salubrious air, but he was anxious to get into the open sea. The liveliest creatures which he observed were the chattering monkeys. He ran into the mouth of a river and cast anchor. It was perhaps here that the Spaniards first set foot on the New Continent.

Some Indians were secured and they pointed westerly, and indicated that men were much more numerous in that direction. The Spaniards were struck with the tall stature of the men, and noted the absence of braids in their hair. As he went on the country became more attractive, with its limpid streams, its luxuriant woods and clambering vines, all enlivened with the flitting of brilliant birds. The men found oysters clinging to the boughs of the trees that drooped along the shore. Columbus recalled how he had read in Pliny of the habit of the pearl oyster to open the mouth to catch the dew, which was converted into pearls. To leave this paradise was necessary, and on August 10th, the ships went further on. Near the Dragon's Mouth he found a harbor in which to prepare for the passage out through the tumultuous strait. There seemed no escape from the trial. The passage lay before him. Columbus studied their motion, and finally made up his mind that the turmoil of the waters might after all come from the meeting of the tide and the fresh currents seeking the open sea, and not from rocks or shoals. At all events the passage must be made, and the wind and current finally carried him through, and once without he was brought within sight of two Islands now known as Tobago and Granada, and then turned westward to track the coast, and came to the islands Cubago and Margarita, and surprised some natives in canoes fishing for pearls. Here was a new field for wealth which could alone restore his credit in Spain; but he could not tarry. As he wore ship, he left behind a mountainous reach of the coast that stretched westerly, and he would fain think that India lay that way, as it had from Cuba.

There was much that had been novel in all these experiences. Columbus felt that the New World was throwing wider open the gates of its sublime secrets. He grew to think that the line of no variation of magnetism with corresponding marvels of nature marked but the beginning of a new section of the earth that no one had dreamed of. All the stories of the middle absorbed in the speculative philosophy of his time, had pointed to the distant East as the seat of Paradise, and was he not now coming to it by way of the western passage? As he steered for Espanola, he found the currents to help him. That he had again discovered the mainland he was convinced. He had no conception of the physical truth. The vagaries of his time found in him the creature of their most rampant hallucinations. This aberration was a potent cause in depriving him of the chance to place his own name on this goal of his ambition. It accounts much for the greater impression which Americus Vespucius, with his clearer instincts, was soon to make on the expectant and learned world. The voyage of the Florentine merchant, one of those trespassers that Columbus complained of, was, before the admiral should see Spain again, to instigate the publication of a narrative, which took from its true discoveres the rightful baptism of the world he had unwittingly found. While Columbus was puzzling over the aberration of the pole star and misshaping the earth, Vespucius was comprehending the law of gravitation upon our floating sphere, and ultimately representing it in the diagram which illustrates his narrative.

For four days Columbus had sailed away to the northwest, coming to the wind every night as a precaution, before he sighted Espanola on August 19th, being then, as he made out, about fifty leages west of the spot where he supposed the port had been established for the mines of Hayna. He thought that he had been steering nearer that point, but the currents had probably carried him unconsciously west by night. As Columbus speculated on this steady flow of waters with that keenness of observation upon natural phenomena which attracted the admiration of Humboldt and which is really striking, when we separate it from his turbulent fancies, he accounted by its attrition for the predominating shape of the islands which he had seen, which had their greatest length in the direction of the current. He knew that its force would long retard his efforts to work eastward; he therefore despatched a letter to his brother the Adelantado. He was in due time relieved of all anxiety when he saw a Spanish caraval approaching, and, hailing the vessel, found that Bartholomew had come in person to greet him on his return.

STRIKE FAILURES.—The strike of the switchmen at Buffalo has been declared off, the firemen and other railroad employes refusing to join them. Thus ends what promised to be a serious struggle between the employes and railroad companies centering at Buffalo. The Homestead strike was a failure also. Indeed every strike of any magnitude this year has resulted in defeat for the workmen. It is said, however, a great storm is gathering for next year, when a general strike, involving various trades and railroads, will be inaugurated in May. Strikes will not be successful until all labor is organized. Not more than one in ten of the laborers and mechanics of the country belong to labor organizations. When organized labor refuses to work there are plenty of men who are anxious to take their places. So long as this condition prevails capital will always win.—Advocate.

Representation is apportioned under the following resolution adopted by the Third General Assembly at Reading. "The ratio of representation shall be one deputy at large for each Primary Society, and one additional deputy for every twenty-five members."

Societies are respectfully requested to appoint their deputies at as early a day as may be convenient, and forward the same to the Secretary immediately.

By order of Executive Committee.

A Continuous Track of Steel to Boston.

The Reading's Poughkeepsie Bridge Route.—No longer do travelers between this section of the country and New England have to undergo the discomforts of street transfer through the city of New York. This has all been obviated, and the Reading Railroad with its continuous line of steel rail now carries its passengers in trains, vestibuled from end to end, from Philadelphia to Boston without a single change of cars. This new route, which is via the great Poughkeepsie Bridge, has many attractions, and is rapidly becoming very popular. The accommodations are first-class in every respect; the trains are vestibuled from end to end and are scheduled on fast express time; the roadway is perfect, making the ride pleasant and comfortable; the country traversed abounds in grand and picturesque scenery and the coaches are very models of the car builders art. There are both day and night trains run in each direction, the day trains being vestibuled and having Pullman Buffet Parlor cars attached, and the night trains have Pullman Buffet Sleeping Cars. The east-bound trains are the New England Day Express, which leaves Philadelphia 9th and Green sts. on weekdays only at 10.00 a. m., and the New England Night Express which leaves 9th and Green sts. at 6.45 p. m. and 24th and Chestnut sts. at 6.20 p. m. daily, Sundays included. The west-bound trains are the Quaker City Day Express which leaves Boston, (N. Y. & N. E. R. R. Summer st. depot), on weekdays only, at 9.30 a. m., and the Quaker City Night Express, which leaves Boston, (B. & M. R. R. Causeway st. depot) at 5.45 p. m. daily, Sundays included.

A GASOLINE STEAM CARRIAGE.—A new gasoline steam carriage presents many points of advantage. The weight is only 1,200 pounds, and the working expense of the conveyance is 1 cent per mile. Its ordinary speed is said to be 15 miles an hour, and it will ascend grades with comparative ease. The water tank is sufficient for a 10 or 15 mile run, while the gasoline tank is equal to the requirements of a 40 mile trip. A canopy top extends over the vehicle, so that it has the appearance of an ordinary surrey. The fire regulation is automatic, so that more or less gasoline is admitted to the burners according to the grade of the road, and when the vehicle is stopped the gasoline is cut off, so as to keep down the steam to a certain point. The steering lever is adjusted so that any one can control the steering, while the throttle and reverse lever are by the operator's seat. Two passengers are carried, and, by an ingenious contrivance, all inconvenience from smoke is avoided.

SEPTEMBER.

The spring time has its beauty,
 Its buds, and smiling skies;
The summer has its brightness,
 Autumn its gorgeous dyes.

But in between there happens
 A time so passing sweet,
When summer's "best of weather"
 And autumn's riches meet.

Tis when September sunshine—
 Who sings its praise aright?—
Bathes ocean, wood and meadow
 In floods of liquid light.

The corn which waved its tassels
 When breezes o'er it played,
Now shows its golden treasures
 'Neath husks of mellow shade.

The vines are richly laden
 With grapes of purple hue,
Which fill the air with sweetness
 When bathed in morning dew.

The apple trees are bending
 With fruit of ruddy glow,
Whilst juices rich as "nectar"
 From cider presses flow.

The fields and sloping hillsides
 With golden-rod are crowned,
Whilst matching the calm heavens
 The blue-fringed gentain's found.

The cinquefoil and starwort,
 With pond grass, surge and sedge,
Unite to form a net work
 Along the water's edge.

Close by the stately asters
 In friendly greeting nod;
The milk weed's hidden cotton
 Peeps through the bursting pod.

The cardinal flower's rich scarlet
 Is mirrored in the stream;
Anon a water lily
 Starts from its summer dream.

The freshly furrowed acres
 Receive the precious grain,
That we may fill our garners
 When harvest comes again.

By all these "lovely tokens"
 We always will remember,
Each year that brings its spring time
 Will surely add September. AGAPA.

Little, But Full of Grit.

"Talking about 'pure grit,'" said a woman who was lunching the other day at the Colonial club, "I knew a woman once who was full of it."

"Tell us about her," exclaimed the other two women of the luncheon party. "Who was she?"

"Why, she was my mother," answered the first speaker. "She was the littlest little woman I ever saw, but there was courage and fight enough in her to stock a regiment. I don't mean that she was a nagging creature, making trouble for everybody. She was the sweetest, kindest woman in the world. It was only when somebody tried to impose on her, or on some of us girls, that she came out as a fighter. Let me tell you a story about her and you'll see what I mean.

"Well, we were living in Iowa when my father, a minister, by the way, died and left mother to manage a farm and to care for a big family of girls. The grain was high in the field and it had to be cut at once. Mother entered into negotiations with a neighbor and was just about to close a trade with him when she discovered that he was trying to overreach—insisting on terms that were exorbitant and absurd.

"Mother told him that she'd get somebody else to cut the grain, and that made him so angry that he was quite rude in his speech. But mother shut the door in his face and left him to have his sputter out all by himself.

"That night about 1 o'clock mother was awakened by a noise out in the yard. She slipped out of bed and peered through the window. There was that same farmer engaged in taking down the bars of the fence that surrounded the field of grain that mother wouldn't let him cut. The bars down, the man went out into the road for a minute, and the next minute he came back driving a yoke of oxen, which he turned loose into the field."

"What did your mother say to the man?" asked one of the listeners.

"She didn't say anything."

"Didn't she tell him to take those cattle right out of the field?"

"No, indeed; that was not her way of doing things. What she did first was to dress herself. Then she stole quietly down stairs and went out into the yard. Then she went to the barn and got an ox goad. Then she bounded to the grain field and drove the oxen out of it."

"And then she went back to bed, I suppose," said one of the women. "Or did the watch the rest of the night?"

"Neither. She drove those oxen a mile and a half down the road till she came to a great field of corn which belonged to that awful man. Then she took down the bars and wished the oxen good morning.

"On the way back she stopped long enough to open the gate of a pasture in which was quite a herd of steers and to set some of them moving toward the corn-field, and they found that field, I can assure you.

"Next morning mother told us what she had done, and we just hugged her and kissed her till she cried."

"And what came of it?"

"Oh, yes—that's the best part of the story. The neighbors somehow found out what had happened, and they were so pleased over it that they came and cut mother's grain for nothing.

"But just think of that little ninety-five-pound woman driving a yoke of oxen a mile and a half in the middle of the night on such an errand! I always feel proud of my little mother when I recall this episode in her life."—New York Times.

An Honest Jersey Girl.

She was from the country, and the country in her case was New Jersey. You would learn the first from the tan on her gown. If there had been any room for point it would have been removed by her bag. The woman from Jersey, according to the New York World, always carries a bag when she comes to town. She was on a Broadway car and had ridden all the way from Grand street up to Twenty-first. There she signaled the conductor to stop the car. She let it come to a dead standstill before she rose from her seat. Then she made leisurely progress to the door and stepped from the platform—still deliberately. The car was well under way in obedience to the impatient jerk of the conductor's bell before he espied a purse lying where the woman had been seated. He gave the bell a second yank, seized the purse, and, with "Just like a woman," he made a break for the platform and hailed the woman.

"Here's your purse!" he yelled. "You've gone off and left it."

She turned, walked unhurriedly back to the car, looked hard at the purse and said in a gentle drawl;

"I can take it, if you wish, but it isn't mine!"

The car, with a mad conductor and a load of amused passengers, was started on its way by a tingle that almost wrecked the bell rope. The woman smiled and returned to the sidewalk.

SHE (reading)—Joe, this paper says that out in Oregon they have just discovered footprints three feet long, supposed to belong to a lost race.

HE—I don't see how a race of people that made footprints three feet long could ever get lost.

"Do you ever play hide-and-seek?" asked a gentleman on the hotel piazza, of little Hal.

"Yes," Hal answered. "I hid so well in the woods once, I didn't even know where I was myself."

Mrs. Lofty is Defeated.

"I know just exactly the kind of a girl I want and the kind I'm going to have," said Mrs. Lofty, with marked decision, to Mr. Lofty at the breakfast table on the morning after Miss Judy Mulcahey had packed her two trunks, her three valises and two bandboxes, and departed from a house in which "no dacent, self-respectin' girrull would shtay an' put up wid the loikes av Mistress Lofty."

"The trouble with me has been," went on Mrs. Lofty, "that I've been too easy and yielding, and have made it too pleasant for our servant girls, and they've taken liberties on that account. Now I'm going to turn over a new leaf and be severe and unyielding. I'm just going to lay down the law to the next girl I engage."

Behold, then, Mrs. Lofty "laying down the law," to Miss Rosy O'Hoolihan, who has graciously consented to "shpake wid" Mrs. Lofty after that lady has spent "four solid days" going from one to the other of fifteen different "employment agencies."

"I am looking for a girl," began Mrs. Lofty, "and I—"

"How many in the family, ma'am?"

"Four, and I want—"

"Do ye kape but one girrul?"

"I keep two, and hire the washing and ironing done out. I want—"

"Do the two girruls shlape together?"

"No, I—"

"Divil a step would Oi go aff they did. Have Oi me Sundays and Thoorsdays out?"

"Well—I—I—I was going to say that—"

"Have Oi me Sundays and Thoorsdays out?"

"Well—er—yes. I think I could arrange it so that—"

"Oi have 'em, ma'am, or I don't go. Ye don't mind a girrul having dacent company to see her, ma'am?"

"Well—no, I—I—guess not."

"An' ye'd not ixpect a girrul to intertain her fri'nds in the kitchen?"

"I—I—that is—"

"Divil a fut would Oi put in a house where Oi would be put upon loike that. Is there gas in me room, ma'am?"

"Yes; I was going to say that—"

"An' does a girrul have the same to ate that the family has?"

"Well, some girls don't care to have the same."

"Oi'm not loike some girruls, then; Oi kin say that to ye now, ma'am. Have ye this nashty shtraw matting or a dacent kyarpet in me room?"

"There's matting on the floor now."

"It w'd come up if I wint to ye, ma'am. It makes me cr—r—a—pe to put me fut on shtraw matting. Are yez in the kitchen much, ma'am?"

"Some; I think that—"

"Begorry, the kitchen's no place for the lady av the house, ma'am."

At 6 o'clock that night when Mr. Lofty came home to dinner and asked, "Well, any cook yet?" Mrs. Lofty replied wearily and meekly:

"Yes; I've found one at last."

"That's good! Irish?"

"I should say so! Her name is Rosy O'Hoolihan."

Didn't Like the Brand.

He shuffled his cow-skin boots along under himself into a jewelry store on Woodward avenue and leaned up against the show-case.

"Got any finger rings?" he inquired of the clerk.

"Plenty of them," said the clerk. "What kind do you want?"

"Somethin' fittin' for a gal."

"Oh, a young lady in the case, eh?" queried the clerk.

"No; she's a widder," explained the customer, "but the same sort of a ring will do, won't it?"

"I presume so; what kind do you want?"

"One of them sign rings."

"Sign ring?" asked the clerk. "Do you mean seal rings?"

"No sign rings," insisted the man; "sign the gal's goin' to git spliced."

"Oh, you want an engagement ring?" exclaimed the clerk as the light broke in on him.

"That's it, mister. What's the tax?"

"Want something pretty nice, don't you?"

"You ain't got nothin' in your shop too nice fer that gal, mister. What's the figgers on your best?"

"One thousand dollars," said the clerk, as easily and coolly as if it had been a thousand cents.

The customer fell against the case.

"A thousand dollars!" he fairly yelled. "Why, the widow's farm ain't wuth that much."

"I suppose not," admitted the clerk; "diamonds cost more than dirt, you know."

"Is it a diamond?" inquired the customer, catching on.

"Certainly it is," said the clerk, "what did you think it was?"

"Well, I didn't know but what it was a house and lot on Wood'ard avenue."

"Learn" and "Teach."

The difference between the use of the words learn and teach is often insisted upon, and yet, strangely enough, it is often disregarded, even by persons who should know how to speak correctly. The following conversation, which actually took place in one of the leading clubs of Boston, illustrates the way in which the error is committed.

One member said to another, who was his friend, and whom he had met driving during the day:

"Why in the world didn't you lift your hat to me to-day when I was with Miss Blank?"

"Oh," the other returned, easily, "I just didn't want to. You can't learn me manners."

"No," was the quiet response "but I could teach you English if you would give me half a chance."

A LITTLE GIRL'S COMPOSITION ON "BOYS."—Boys are men that have not got as big as their papas, and girls are women that will be young ladies by-and-by. Man was made before woman. When God looked at Adam he said to himself, "Well, I think I can do better if I try again," and then he made Eve. God liked Eve so much better than Adam that there have been more women than men ever since. Boys are a trouble. They wear out everything but soap. If I had my way, half of the boys in the world would be girls, and the rest would be dolls. My papa is so nice that I think he must have been a little girl when he was a little boy."

THE HOUSE MACE.—The mace of the House of Representative consists of a bundle of thirteen ebony rods entwined and bound together with silver bands. The thirteen ebony sticks represent the thirteen original States of the Union. They are surmounted by a globe of silver upon which the hemispheres are traced, while a silver eagle with out-stretched wings is perched upon the summit of the globe. It was made in 1884, and weighs twenty pounds.

"It's awful cold on top of the mountain, 'Cause my papa said so," said Bobbie. "Seems to me if I lived on top of a mountain I'd live at the foot of it."

Extravagance of Royalty.

Potentates are apt to be very extravagant persons, and seem to have as hard a time living within their allowance as any small boy on 5 cents a week. Of course they have tremendous expenses to meet in the way of entertaining other potentates, and no king ever lived who failed to have a royal family big enough to fill all the palaces at his disposal and two more; but often they could look after their own, and still have plenty left for pleasure if they did not waste.

The worst two instances of royal extravagance in modern times are the King of Siam's submerged palace, and the pipe of the Shah of Persia. The cost of the Siamese King's palace is not known, but it is a splendidly costly affair, and is so arranged that his Royal Highness and his suite can spend a great deal of their time under water, surrounded by the most luxurious things the world affords. It would seem as though a king with so much splendor at his command on the surface of the earth could get along without a palace under water, but as a popular song says. "Things are seldom what they seem," and it is the greatest danger of great luxury that we tire of the blessings we have, and become, even in the midst of them, most unhappy because we can have no more.

The Shah of Persia's tobacco pipe is worth $400,000, and the chances are that he does not get half the pleasure from smoking it that the poor laboring man gets from puffing his one-cent clay pipe. When one reflects upon the amount of good that could be done with $400,000 put-out at fair interest, one is forced to consider it wicked to keep so much money locked up in so unworthy an object. Five per cent. on $400,000 is $20,000, or enough, when applied to the needs of the children of the poor in our cities, to send 6,666 of them off into the country for two weeks every summer, renewing their strength and making better citizens of them in every way. Think of that, and then think what you would do with a $400,000 pipe if you had one. You will not be long in making up your mind if you are children of the right sort.

Discrimination of Rats.

Some time ago a letter inclosing an affidavit, both signed by Daniel F. Harrison, of Ringgold township, Jefferson county, Pa., was received at the United States Treasury Department. The letter stated that the bits of greenbacks it contained represented what was left of $50,000 in that kind of money, which had been mutilated or eaten or carried away by rats. The affidavit affirmed that the statement was true. The bits of greenbacks inclosed showed that if the bills they came from were with them they would amount to $17,000. The curious part of the matter was that the denomination of the bill it had been a part of was indicated invariably by each piece, a coincidence that the Treasury Department did not feel inclined to attribute entirely to the careful discrimination of rats.

If the Treasury Department accepts the detectives' view of the case there will be an interesting future for Farmer Harrison. The money, according to Harrison's sworn statement, had been secreted in an oat bin two years, he having no faith in banks. When he went to get it only the bits forwarded to the Treasury remained. Chief McSweeney, of the Government Secret Service, investigated the matter and concluded it was a bunko game, as Harrison never made over $6,000 all the years he had been in the county.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

THE DRUNKARD'S POSTERITY.—Demme studied ten families of drinkers and ten families of temperate persons. The direct posterity of the ten families of drinkers included fifty-seven children. Of these twenty-five died in the first weeks and months of their life, six were idiots, in five children a striking backwardness of their longitudinal growth was observed, five were effected with epilepsy, five with inborn diseases. One boy was taken with chorea and became idiotic. Thus of the fifty-seven children of drinkers only ten, or 17.5 per cent. showed a normal constitution and development. The ten sober families had sixty-one children, five only dying in the first weeks; four were affected with curable diseases of the nervous system; two only presented inborn defects. The remaining fifty—81.9 per cent—were normal in their constitution and development. From this series of investigations we derive the sad truth that among the children of drinkers the prevailing mortality is fearful, that the surviving represents a pitiful crowd afflicted with unsoundness of mind, idiocy, epilepsy and other disturbances of their nervous system, and that only a very small proportion of the descendants grow up as useful members of society.—Herald of Health.

A Severe Test.

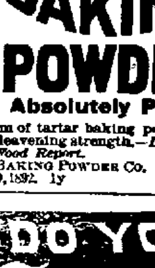

When a manufacturer, from years of observation, has so completely satisfied himself of the universal satisfaction given by his products, that he feels fully warranted in selling them under a certificate of guarantee, it is very natural to believe that such a producer has implicit confidence in the merits of his goods, and that, too, not without good reason. Such confidence is possessed by the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y., in Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines, and hence his "Favorite Prescription" is sold by druggists, as no other medicine for similar purposes ever was, under a positive guarantee, that it will in every case give satisfaction, or money paid for it will be refunded. It cures all those distressing and delicate ailments and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is not necessary to enumerate the long catalogue of derangements, both functional and organic, of the female system which this marvelous remedy overcomes. They are, alas! but too well-known to most females who have attained womanhood, to need more than a hint to make them plain to their understanding.

"Do you know what I'd do if I had a trunk like you?" asked the bear, when he found the elephant in a nice shady cool spot in the forest.

"What would you do?" asked the elephant.

"I'd travel," suggested the bear, who envied the elephant.

Be Sure of the Right to Vote.

Every voter should see to it that his name be placed on the registry list before next THURSDAY, the 8th of September. Do not trust to a careless or forgetful assessor, who may tell you that your name has been registered; but go yourself and examine the list of registration, which he is bound to show you. If you find that you are not registered, have it done on the spot, in your presence. It takes a little trouble to exercise the right of suffrage, but no good citizen should begrudge it.

THE Western headquarters of the national Democratic campaign committee will be in charge of Mr. B. F. Cable, national committeeman from Illinois.

County Committee Meeting.

County Committee met on Saturday, Sept. 3d, pursuant to the call of County Chairman S. Miley Miller, Esq.

The meeting was well attended, almost all of the districts being represented, but where there were any absentees, substitutions were made. A careful inquiry of a representative of each township was made concerning the political condition of the district by the Chair, and favorable and encouraging reports were made from every district in the county.

On motion of P. H. Strubinger, Esq., Dr. Tempest C. Miller, of Abbottstown, the present incumbent, was unanimously chosen to fill the vacancy on the ticket for Coroner.

P. H. Strubinger, C. S. Duncan, I. H. Hoechst, A. J. Brady and Martin Boyer, Esqs., were appointed a committee to draft and report resolutions.

During the absence of the committee on resolutions the Chair gave hints and points to committeemen in regard to the registry of all Democrats on or before September 8th.

At the suggestion of the Chairman, the county was districted into five sections, and the following gentlemen unanimously elected Division Chairmen: John Kimple for the Western, James Cretin for the Southern, Leighten H. Rice for the Northern, S. Miley Miller for the Eastern, and J. L. Butt, Esq., for the Central.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted: "Resolved that no money be given to any person for any purpose except on an order from the Chairman, signed by the Secretary; that this committee this day elect an Auditing committee of three, whose duty it shall be to act in conjunction with the Treasurer in the receiving of money from the Candidates and other sources, and the paying out of the same; no money to be paid out except on check of Treasurer, endorsed by one of the members of the Auditing committee, and that all Treasurers hereafter be required to give bond in double the probable amount of money to be received.

"Resolved that the Chairman and District Chairmen meet October 1st, to make such requisite arrangements as may be deemed necessary to the thorough organization and bringing out a full party vote, fixing places for public meetings, &c."

The following Auditing committee was unanimously elected: John A. Menchey, J. L. Butt, Esq., and W. C. Sheely, Esq.

Committee adjourned to meet at the call of the Chairman.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

PLATFORM.

The Democratic County Committee to-day convened, authorized by the last County Convention to draft and adopt a declaration of principles, do therefore resolve:

I. That the profound wisdom and sound judgment that characterized the Democratic councils at Chicago in the nomination of the people's instead of the politician's choice for our standard-bearer, meets our hearty approval, assuring us of four years more of honest government and general prosperity, notwithstanding the barrier of a hostile Senate, and a robber tariff, and that we therefore cordially and courageously endorse Grover Cleveland and Adlai E. Stevenson, located and inspired with increased devotion and confident of the renewed power of the party of the people and for the people.

II. We denounce the McKinley tariff as calamitous to the masses, and as the direct and legitimate cause of strikes, protests, riots, bloodshed and murder, through the imposition of the increased cost of living to all wage-earners, and the decreased wages of labor in the protected monopoly manu-factories, thereby endorsing the Chicago platform, particularly the "Tariff for revenue only," and the coinage plank, with a view that the toiling tax-burdened masses may be emancipated from the bondage of the depredating classes.

III. We more especially and most emphatically denounce and deride the mischievous, miserable attempt at the revival of the Davenport iniquitous and insurrectionary interference of federal supervisors, federal marshalls, federal troops, bayonets and shotguns at the polls to thwart and overthrow our inherent constitutional right and guarantee to peaceful and popular suffrage, and returning boards and partisan courts, that they might blot and blacken our country's chronicle with a chapter of another stolen President; and to this end we mutually pledge ourselves in the language of Pres. Cleveland, "to fight the force bill to the death," and this necessitates our undivided support of the ticket, National, State and County.

IV. That we point with great pride to the economical administration of Pres. Cleveland, that left nearly one hundred million dollars in the treasury, while Harrison with the aid of the billion dollar congress, will leave it depleted and depredated, with a deficit of nearly fifty million dollars. Congratulating the Fifty-second Congress, therefore, on the economical policy in appropriations, and on their patriotic effort for the relief of the tax-ridden poor people and plundered farmers, we most earnestly and enthusiastically endorse the renomination of our talented statesman and patriot, Hon. F. E. Beltzhoover, and express our sincere gratitude for his eminent services in the interest of his constituents and his country, which will serve as an unmouldering monument to his imperishable fame.

V. Adhering to the policy of Grover Cleveland, viz: a liberal pension to all disabled, dependent, honorably discharged veterans, and the rejection of all deserters, bounty-jumpers and camp-followers, we favor an increase of pension to all such deserving survivors of the federal forces, laying and assessing a direct tax for the payment of said pension upon the millionaire plutocrats, some of whom amassed and accumulated their massive fortunes by and through the war, and the others through class legislation as favorites of the G. O. P.; furthermore recommending and advocating the reduction, if not the repeal, of the tax on all that enters into the daily consumption of these poor soldiers and their families, taking thereby sixty per cent. of their meagre insufficient pension, and placing it in the pockets of the rich government bounty beneficiaries.

VI. Reaffirming our admiration for Gov. Pattison, we are pleased to congratulate him on his prudent policy in the adjustment of the Homestead troubles, and hereby instruct our members to support him for U. S. Senator, but we nevertheless assert our natural Democratic sympathy for well and thoroughly organized labor, with the hope that as they increase and strengthen, they may be able to shield labor against the tyrannous impositions of inhuman and insatiate lucre grabbers and monopolists, and intelligent consideration and discussion take the place of riot and violence, thus enabling them to realize that their only possible and proper relief, redress and remedy is by and through the ballot-box.

VII. We heartily rejoice in the high and worthy compliment bestowed upon our acknowledged and able leader, efficient and energetic organizer, Wm. F. Harrity, as National Chairman, and with an abiding faith that he will steer the Cleveland ship to the port of victory, we pledge him our united aid and adherence.

VIII. That our County ticket composed by those sterling Democrats Ziegler, whose record is unimpeachable, Rittase, whose loyalty as a Democrat and character and reputation as an upright, honorable citizen, can not be questioned, Meckley, Group, Delap and Miller, whose ability, integrity and devotion cannot be disputed, merits the loyal support of every Democrat by vote and voice. This committee, therefore, unanimously appeals to the Democratic voters to stand firm and united for the entire ticket in this year when the revival of Republican force menaces, like in war times, our Democratic right and freedom of suffrage.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2, 1892.

Editor of Compiler: A marked feature of the present campaign is the great difference between the way prominent Republicans who come to Washington talk for publication and the way they talk among themselves. In published interviews they all with one accord talk as though the campaign was already settled in their favor and the election a mere formality that must be gone through with just to keep up appearances; but let two or three of them meet privately, where they think themselves safe from the sharp ears of wicked and prying newspaper men, and to hear them, reminds one of the line of the familiar song—"Oh what a difference in the morning."

Two office-holders—U. S. Treasurer Nebeker, and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Crounse, who is also the Republican candidate for Governor of Nebraska—returned from visits to their respective States this week, and before they had shaken the dust of travel from their clothes they both gave out rose-colored interviews of the Republican prospects in Indiana and Nebraska, in which those States were stated to be entirely out of the doubtful list. By a mere accident I learned the real opinions of those two men. Nebeker sent word to Mr. Harrison and to his man Carter that unless something was immediately done to satisfy the disaffected Republicans in the Fort Wayne district of Indiana all hope of carrying the State might as well be abandoned. So much for his confidence. Mr. Crounse feels so uncertain about the result in his State that he is loth to resign his present office, and wants to fix it so that when he does resign, his pay will run to the first of October, and the place be kept vacant until after the election, in order that he may be reappointed if he gets defeated. He has appealed to the national committee for financial assistance in his campaign, with the statement that it is money or certain defeat.

It may be that Secretary Tracy can explain satisfactorily the charges which the New York Herald daily reiterates, that the change in the armor of the new war vessels was made at the request of the firms that make the armor, and that it will put several hundred thousands of dollars in the pockets of the aforesaid firms, but the ugly fact remains, that up to the present time he has not done so, and to attempt to pooh, pooh, charges made by so responsible a journal as the Herald will hardly go down with an intelligent public. The charge of favoritism, not to call it by a worse name, has been specifically made and nothing short of an answer just as specific will satisfy the unprejudiced public. If Secretary Tracy can prove the Herald to be wrong, it is a duty he owes to the administration, as well as to his own good name, to do so at once.

Secretary Tracy is coming in for considerable criticism because of the unprotected position of American interests in South America, which was sharply brought to mind by the forcible seizure of political refugees on a passenger steamship carrying the American flag, the other day, by Venezuelans, and the consequent hurried ordering of the gun-boat Concord from the Atlantic coast to Venezuelan waters. When the social influences of the officers of the navy were many months ago scheming to have the best ships in our navy spend the summer on the Atlantic coast, to give the "dear ducks" who "dance so delightfully, you know," an opportunity to put in a little time at all the fashionable seaside resorts, Secretary Tracy was begged by those interested to keep one or two vessels in South American waters to look after American interests which are constantly jeopardized by the unsettled condition of several of the countries over there, but he could not stand the social "pull," hence the present unsatisfactory condition of affairs.

The possibility of an extra session of Congress put Washington all in a flutter this week, that is, if the rumor prevalent about Mr. Harrison intending to call an extra session to prohibit immigration, on account of the spread of cholera in Europe may be said to make a possibility. Treasury department officials, who ought to know if such a thing was contemplated, decline to talk about it, although several of them admitted that a suspension of immigration would help very much in keeping the cholera out of the United States. Senator Cullom, of Illinois, now in Washington, says he does not believe there is any foundation for the rumor, and that there is no necessity at this time for any law absolutely prohibiting immigration, although he admits that it may be become necessary if the cholera continues to increase in Europe.

The Cholera Scourge,

This dread disease which for some time has raged at many points in Russia, where thousands of people have been stricken, has made its appearance at other points in Europe. At Paris, Havre, Antwerp, London, Liverpool, Glasgow, and many other points, the dread disease has appeared. In the city of Hamburg, Germany, where the dreaded disease is raging most violently, 810 new cases and 318 deaths were reported on Tuesday, and about the same number on Wednesday. The number of interments Monday was 290 three times the average in healthful times. Many of the burials took place at night, as there is not only less danger of infection, but also fewer persons abroad to be panic stricken by the appalling frequency of funerals. Most bodies are unaccompanied by friends or relatives. Persons of the poorer class dying in hospitals are buried without any attempt at ceremony and without having been even seen by friends or family.

The steamship Moravia, which arrived at New York Monday week from Hamburg, with immigrants and freight, had 22 deaths on the passage. The ship's doctor says they were all cases of cholerine. Two of those who died were adults and 20 were children.

The city authorities in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other ports are taking every precaution to prevent the cholera getting a foothold there. The national government is also acting promptly. No vessel from a foreign port carrying immigrants will be allowed to enter any port in this country until 20 days' quarantine.

NANCY HANKS made a great record on Wednesday, when she trotted on the kite track at Independence, Iowa, in the unprecedented time of 2.05¼, clipping two from the week before. Nancy Hanks is a bay mare, six years old, 16¾ hands high. She was sired by Happy Medium, out of a Dictator mare. She is owned by J. Malcolm Forbes, of Boston, who purchased her last year for $35,000. It is twenty-five years ago that Robert Bonner caused somewhat of a sensation by paying $50,000 for Dexter, whose record is 2.17 1-4. At the time the sale was made it caused the editor of Turf Field and Farm to remark that "the little wonder's record of 2.17 1-4 will probably never be eclipsed"—a prediction that seems a trifle odd to-day in view of the recent grand records of the present favorite.

THE coal mine in the Pigeon Hills, near Abbottstown, has now reached such a stage of development that important results may shortly be looked for. An engine of sufficient power has been purchased and put in position to facilitate the work of enlarging and deepening the shafts, and as the drifts are pushed farther into the hill the veins or deposits of coal become stronger and of better quality. The outlook is very encouraging for the most gratifying success, and it is but a question of time for its full development.—Advance.

WRECK ON P. H. AND P.—As the Eastbound passenger, due at Boiling Springs at 4 38 Tuesday, was coming round the curve above the station it collided with the local as it was entering the sidetrack. Engineer Showers seeing the danger reversed his engine and jumped from his cab. There was no loss of life or limbs and with the exception of the sudden jar and a few bruises no one was seriously hurt. After a few hours busy work by the wrecking crew the track was cleared.—Volunteer.

DIED IN A WELL.—Mr. Curtis Dulebohn, residing three miles east of Welsh Run, Franklin county, while cleaning a well on Monday was overcome by carbonic gas. His son at the windlass noticed his condition and descended into the well to rescue him. He tied a rope around his father and the mother turning the windlass drew him up. Mr. Dulebohn began to revive soon after reaching the surface. The son who had remained in the well was soon affected by the gas and to such a degree that when his mother lowered the rope for him to ascend she discovered that he was entirely overcome. She rang the bell to summon the neighbors and on the arrival of several of them a ladder was lowered and the mother descended and placed a rope around her son and the men at the top hoisted him to the surface only to discover that life was extinct.

CHURCH ROBBED.—One night recently thieves entered the Red Run Church, near Mulberry, and sadly despoiled it. The communion set was stolen, the carpet was badly cut and a portion carried off, the cloth from the communion table was taken along, and a closet broken open, from which sixty or seventy cents were stolen, and the books were scattered about the church. The stable connected with the church was broken open and from appearances incendiarism was attempted, as there were pieces of burned paper scattered around. The heavy strap used to lower coffins into the graves was al o stolen.—Hanover Herald.

RIGHT OR WRONG.—Which will ye have? It does seem as if some folks prefer to have the last condition of the liver rather than the first. They perpetually dose themselves with purgatives totally without virtue as alterative of liver trouble. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the successful candidate for the people's choice, and yet, popular and well known as it is, there are unfortunates who keep on trying the drastic remedies of former days. It is to the intelligent portion of the public that the well known and long tried properties of the Bitters appeal. Reason should be guided by experience in the matter of medication. "The best guide to our feet is the lamp of experience," said a great patriot of the early revolutionary period, and the exclamation is pregnant with truth. For over a third of a century the Bitters daily has met with the endorsement of people suffering from liver complaint, malaria, constipation, rheumatism, debility and troubles accompanied by dyspepsia. Latterly it has declared itself and been thoroughly approved as a remedy for "la grippe."

FELL DEAD.—These words are very familiar to our readers, as not a day passes without the report of the sudden death of some prominent citizen. The explanation is "Heart Disease." Therefore beware if you have any of the following symptoms: Short Breath, Pain in Side, Smothering Spells, Swollen Ankles, Asthmatic Breathing, Weak and Hungry Spells, Tenderness in Shoulder or Arm, Fluttering of Heart or Irregular Pulse. These symptoms mean heart disease. The most reliable remedy is Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which has saved thousands of lives. Book of testimonials free at John M. CHRISTY BREAD KNIFE.

Who has not been annoyed time and again in the attempt to cut bread with an ordinary knife?

The Christy Bread Knife is the best ever offered for sale, and the only one made that will cut bread perfectly.

It will cut hot bread as nicely as it will cold.

In cutting, place the loaf of bread upon a table or bread board, use the knife the same as you would a saw, pressing lightly, and it will not crumble the bread.

It is far superior to a smooth-edged knife in every respect.

The scalloped edge does not interfere with its being sharpened on a whetstone or steel, as you would an ordinary knife.

Having once used this knife you will never be without it It is indispensable to good housekeeping.

The steel handle will not soak off or get loose, and is very convenient for hanging up the knife.

To slice bread thin for making sandwiches it is perfection: you can cut thin slices just as well as you can thick ones.

If this knife is used only for the purpose for which it is intended it will retain its cutting edge perfectly for years.

26th Emergency Regiment.

The unveiling of the fine monument, which has been fully described in these columns, occurred on Thursday afternoon in the presence of a large audience. The many seats under cover were soon filled and large numbers stood to hear the interesting exercises. Prior to collecting at the end of Chambersburg street, where the statue stands, the veterans held a business meeting in Brua Chapel and were escorted to the scene by the Grand Army Band, who furnished music during the programme. Col. W. W. Jennings, of Harrisburg, presided over the exercises, which were opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. E. J. Wolf, of company A, (a list of whose members appeared in our last). The Opening Address was by Sergeant Samuel H. Bentz, of Lebanon. The flag which draped the statue was then removed by Mr. A. W. Schick, of Moline, Pa., the new College bell ringing and the Band playing. Private J. H. Jacobs, of Reading, then presented the monument which was received by Rev. Dr. H. W. McKnight, adjutant of the regiment. The Oration was by Judge Samuel W. Pennypacker, of Philadelphia, a private in the regiment. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Frederick Klinefelter, who commanded Co. A. The speakers stand had a guard of the S. of V. under command of Harry Holtzworth. Hanover had a number of enlisted men in this command and a goodly number of them were present, the attendance of veterans reaching considerably over one hundred. The two bronze plates giving history will be placed on granite bases on each side of the main base.

THE State Monument Commission was here last week and approved the design for a monument of the 21st Cavalry, on the Baltimore turnpike. During their visit it was stated that the State appropriation will be used in erecting three separate monuments for Generals Meade, Hancock and Reynolds.

THE setting of the four big stones composing the shaft of the New York monument attracted many spectators, the last one going in place on Friday evening in the presence of a large crowd. The powerful derrick and engine handled them with ease. The capital, which finishes the stone work, will consist of three pieces and is on the way. The bronze statue is not yet cast.

THE new College bell, which weighs 2,200 pounds and has a loud and agreeable tone, was placed in the belfry on Wednesday by Contractor Jos. J. Smith. On account of the belfry openings being too small, it was taken up inside, requiring the tearing away of part of the interior.

THE Republican Congressional Conferees of this district met at Williams' Grove on Thursday. Robert M. Wirt named N Sargent Ross, of York, and John C. Lower, of McKnightstown, moved to close the nominations. The struggle over representation in future conferences was put off for a meeting at the McClellan house next Monday.

Farm and House.

ONE of the important duties of the farmer at this especial season of the year is to constitute himself a weed killer. Not a single weed upon the farm, nor about the farm in the lands or roads, should be permitted to mature its seed, for then dozens or even hundreds will spring up to annoy you and to rob the soil where now there is but one.

POTATO scab frequently injures the value of the crop to a very great extent. If your potatoes are scabby this year do not save any of them for seed, and do not plant on same soil next year.

A DAIRYMAN should never be discouraged by the price of dairy products, provided he procures the best prices that are going. The market has its ups and downs, like all things else. Keep quality and production always to the highest standard, and the profit will come by the end of the year.

A CLOVER sod, turned under this fall and left to decay through the winter, will furnish an excellent seed bed for potatoes next spring. It will make a heavy crop of clean, sound tubers, and have plenty of food for ensuing grain crops.

WE have never found anything better for killing cabbage worms than hot water. If put into a sprinkling can when boiling hot it will be of about the right temperature when sprayed out. One good application will kill every worm. We have used it to advantage in the garden, but there might be some difficulty in fitting up to apply it on a large scale in field culture.

LAND that has not been favorable to certain crops that are subject to disease, such as potatoes, should be plowed, and forty bushels of air-slacked lime applied per acre. The lime will assist in destroying the spores of fungi, and thus aid in preventing rot. Whether beneficial in arresting disease or not the lime will be found useful as a fertilizer, and as a means of decomposing inert matter in the soil.

THE best place for a coop containing a hen with a brood of chicks is on the asparagus patch. The chicks diligently search the stalks and destroy the asparagus beetle, which damages the plants in some locations.

NEVER be deceived and feed your hens because they run after you every time you appear, as it is due to education you have given them, being only a habit. Make them work. An idle, lazy hen will not lay eggs. When you notice a hen scratching and foraging you will find an egg in her nest.

THIS is the time of year to lay down the drain tile. A single tile across a wet field may add 50 per cent. value to the land. The proper way to tile the land is to have it surveyed, so as to be sure of the level of the soil, and use the tile wherever draining is necessary. The spring will find the tiled land dry when other portions of the farm are too wet to plow.

IODIDE of potassium is recommended and endorsed by the Agricultural Department as a remedy for the disease known as "lumpy jaw" in cattle, the size of the dose depending on the weight of the animal. From one and a half to two drams of the iodide, once a day, in water, which is decreased to one dram twice a day, for ten days, is suggested though some give even larger doses.

IF the late cabbage plants are small, and do not appear to grow as they should, apply a small quantity of superphosphate, or some nitrogenous fertilizer, around each one of the plants, and then give the field a good working with hoe or cultivator.

HEDGES may be evened some with the shears now. Do not cut back too severely before winter.

ONE of the best things to do in the time of drought is to clean the well, as the water will then be low, and the work can be done more thoroughly. Every well should be cleaned at least once a year.

WHAT the dairy farmer wants is a cow that will take enough of that food supply to maintain herself in health and vigor, at the same time producing the greatest possible quantity of milk, of the best possible cost.

CULTIVATE shallow at all times—in dry weather, when the roots grow deep, to make a surface mulch; in wet weather, when the roots are nearer to the surface, to keep down the weeds and keep the soil from baking.

THE difference between an orchard that has been cultivated, kept clean and fertilized compared with one seeded to grass will be easily noticeable, and the yields will vary in proportion to the neglect or attention given.

A CONNECTICUT farmer kept an account of the small fruit grown on half an acre of ground and used by his family last year. He figured on the fruit at market rates and found it amounted to $365, or more than $700 per acre.

IF stakes for cane fruits and for grapes are scarce or expensive, place solid posts some distance apart and run two or three wires lengthwise of the row. We have tried this, and find it quite as satisfactory as a stake at each hill.

BAD cooking kills more people than all actual diseases combined, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, and the fatalities along this line are steadily increasing as the years number themselves with the past.

RASPBERRIES and blackberries will last a good many years if well taken care of. Remember this when you are preparing the ground for planting, and do the work so well that you will not have to reproach yourself afterwards for slighting it.

SPICED PICKLED QUINCES.—5 lbs. fruit; boil soft in water; then make a syrup of 3 lbs. sugar, 1½ pints good vinegar, cloves, mace and cinnamon according to taste; pour boiling hot over fruit; let it stand a day, then boil the syrup again, the last time putting the fruit in the kettle for a short time; put in stone jars. Peaches are very nice made in this way.

TOMATO SALAD.—For salad always select fresh, firm fleshed, thoroughly ripe tomatoes of good size. If you can't find these don't attempt to have tomato salad. Always peel them by dipping for an instant into boiling water. The skin slips off immediately. Then set them away to get cold, and when ready to serve, slice neatly into your salad bowl. Dress with two tablespoonsful of the best oil, a teaspoonful of vinegar, a pinch of salt and a sprinkling of pepper.

GREEN CORN PUDDING.—Take 12 ears of sweet corn, grated, 1½ pints of milk, 4 well beaten eggs, 1½ cups sugar, mix it and bake for 2 hours in a buttered dish.

GEORGIA took in $500,000 on watermelons this season.

CATARRH

Is a most loathsome, dangerous, and prevalent malady. It is a blood disease, usually of Scrofulous origin, and for which local treatment is useless. Before health is possible, the poison must be eradicated from the system, and to do this the disease must be treated through the blood. For this purpose no remedy is so effective as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

SUCCESSFULLY

"For the past eight years, I have been severely afflicted with Catarrh, none of the many remedies I tried affording me any relief. My digestion was considerably impaired, and my sleep disturbed by phlegm dropping into my throat. In September last I resolved to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to use it at once, and am glad to testify to a great improvement in my health."—Frank Teson, Jr., engineer, 271 West Fourth street, New York City.

"My daughter, 16 years old, was afflicted with Catarrh from her fifth year. Last August she was

TREATED WITH

Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and after three months of this treatment she was completely cured. It was a most extraordinary case, as any druggist here can testify."—Mrs. D. W. Barnes, Valparaiso, Neb.

FELL 500 FEET AND STILL LIVES.—Staunton, Va., Aug. 25.—H. L. Williams, of Michigan, had a fall of 500 feet this evening from a balloon. He ascended from the fair grounds and was to descend in a parachute. The parachute was wet from a hard rain and would not open. Williams came down like an arrow, falling about twenty feet from where he ascended. He was picked up unconscious, but to-night is thought to be out of danger. His wife made a successful ascent and descent yesterday. Three thousand people were present to-day.

MISS MATILDA MARTIN, daughter of the late Francis Martin, of Littlestown, was received into the order of St. Francis at the convent at Glen Riddle, near Philadelphia, on Tuesday last. While at this Institution her health failed and she was compelled to suspend her studies for a short time. She then entered St. Peter's convent, at Columbia, Pa., and subsequently determined to join the order of St. Francis. In religion she will be known as Sister Mary Norberta.—Independent.

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."
